ABOUT THE SERIES

After having been diagnosed with a rare autoimmune disorder, Shebbie – a 56 year-young empty-nester, caregiver and mother of five, was forced to focus more time on herself.

During a Christmas dinner conversation with her family, Shebbie announced that she would be taking a year off. Her family, being left with both feelings of nervousness and excitement, were not quite sure what a “year off” would mean – and in retrospect, neither would she.

For Shebbie, someone whose life had for so long revolved around caring for her family, the idea of a year-of-fun instinctually felt more like a series of relaxing weekend getaways, than a trans-continental adventure. However, the fortuitous meeting of cinematographer, Justin R. Edelman, and the idea of documenting her Year, would help propel Shebbie to dream bigger.

And as the year-of-fun morphed from weekend trips to bucket-list travels, so did the meaning and purpose of the trips. Set to the backdrop of dozens of awe-inspiring destinations, Shebbie finds herself in the midst of a life changing journey of self discovery.
